Week 7 Final Card Sort

When initially making my card sort, I decided to use the following categories regarding my website; career things, about me things, design things, music things, and programming things. The reason I decided to include design and programming things is so that the complete functionalities of my website can be complete through the use of specific code such as JQuery. Included below is my initial card sort from week 6.

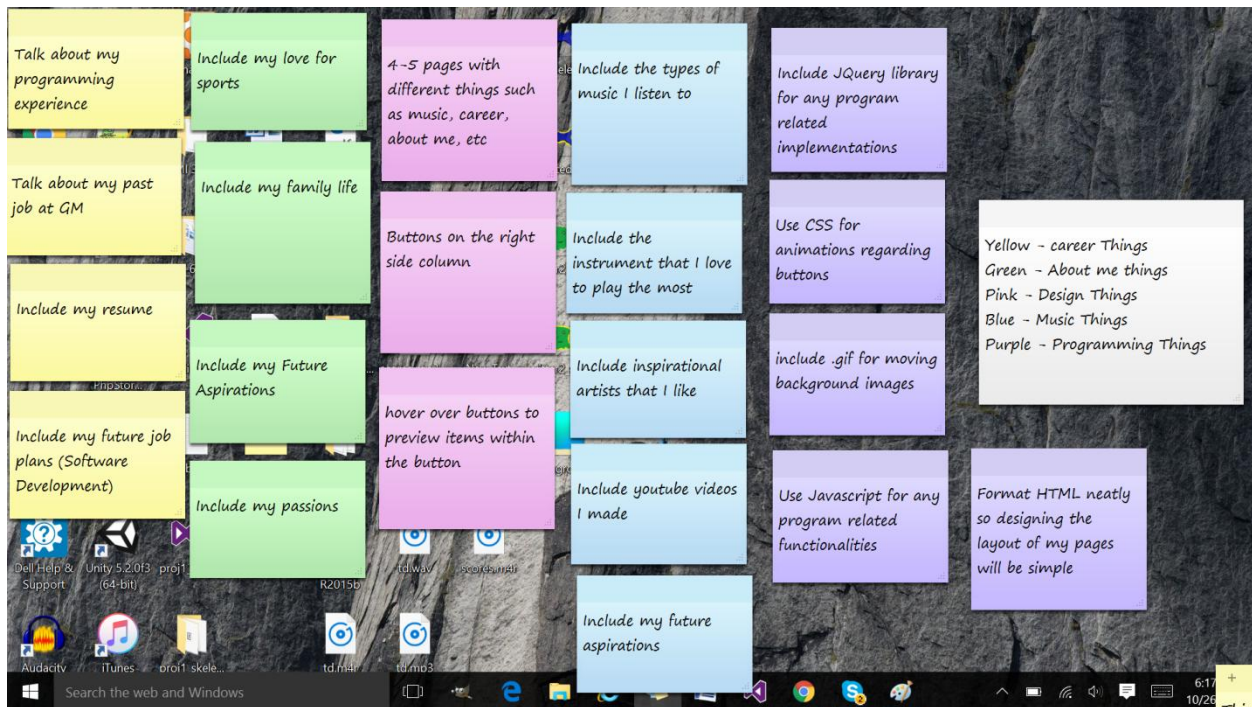

For the group card sort, I decided to let my roommates move around the cards on my desktop in order to regroup the cards. For the first card sort, my roommate Nick, moved around the cards which allowed the final result to be slightly different than my original. The figure can be seen below.

As you can see, he decided to move "Include my passions" from the "About me things" to "career things". The reason for this was because my passions should include the career I'm wishing to pursue. He also switched the "Format HTML..." and "Include .gif" cards. The reasonsing was that formatting HTML can be seen as programming and including .gifs can be seen as design.

My other roommate was given the cards on my desktop as well, and rearranged the cards as follows:

I agree more with my second roommates opinion on the card sort because I should have one card for "Include my future aspirations" within the Music things category. This raises a good question with me: what are my future plans for music along with my career? This is a very good question that I must ask myself and look to do within my final card sort as well as my final website.

I took both of the good points my roommates made in the group card sorting and came to the following conclusion. Further, this final card sort will allow me to properly organize my website neatly, with all of the necessary content I should include.

Final group card sort

Talk about my programming experience

Include my love for sports

4 -5 pages with different things such as music, career, about me, etc

Include the types of music I listen to Include JQuery library for any program related implementations

Talk about my past job at GM

Include my family life

Buttons on the right side column

Include the instrument that I love to play the most

Use CSS for animations regarding buttons

Include my resume

Include my Future Aspirations

hover over buttons to preview items within the button

Include inspirational artists that I like include .gif for moving background images

Include my future job plans (Software Development)

Include my passions

Include youtube videos I made

Use Javascript for any program related functionalities

Include my future aspirations

Format HTML neatly so designing the layout of my pages will be simple

Yellow – career Things
Green – About me things
Pink – Design Things
Blue – Music Things
Purple – Programming Things